‘Ekur ‘emaayaayp Barona Indian Reservation,
A Story of 75 Years of Unity
The 75th Anniversary of the Barona Indian Reservation

FROM THE DIRECTOR
By Museum Director/Chief Curator Cheryl Histon

‘Moving from Captain to Barona’...So, they build us these houses...and gave us each small and big, 3 hectares, nice ones too with fences. And we made a good deal.” Lenora Bartigan [1930]

“San Diego needed more water...We are going to move the people, we’ll pay them a little...to move away.” We didn’t have anything to say about it because we were wards of the government.” Josephine ’Siester’ Remirez [1930]

“They were happy until that first winter, because they all had cement floors that began to get damp. The majority of them had to put roofs on because they leaked or had decayed walls.” Josephine Whaley [1930]

“When we first moved up here, there weren’t very many people, we only had 37 houses...maybe 30 people...they built that church when they built the houses.” Albert Beto’s Phoenix [1930-1940]

A history grows and prospers through the telling from one generation to the next. This new exhibit tells the story of the Barona people and their Reservation. The people have stayed together through the years; during difficult times and good times, they have grown and prospered. Barona Indian Reservation is celebrating 75 years since the people moved here from Capitan Grande. In 1875, the Barona people and their Reservation. The people have stayed together through the years; during difficult times and good times, they have grown and prospered. Barona Indian Reservation is celebrating 75 years since the people moved here from Capitan Grande. In 1875, the United States formalized the government at Capitan Grande and it entered into the new reservation system. Before that, the people were governed by their traditional clans. When the people moved to Barona in 1932, the Barona Group of the Capitan Grande Band of Mission Indians was formed.

The Museum has gathered a great deal of information from historic and recent interviews, archives, and family photographs to accomplish this important exhibit. Over the past three years, I have interviewed about 30 Tribal and Community members for the Barona History Project, beginning with former Chairman Clifford LaChappa and most recently with children Joseph and Sierra Banegas. The Barona Museum now has a rich and fascinating oral history collection that will endure for future knowledge. In the many voices of the interviews, several themes reverberated such as the spirit of community, change through the years, and the social and political history of the Barona Tribe. The visitor will find these themes reflected in the Barona History Room including an in-depth Barona History Timeline exhibit. Different people remember the same events slightly differently. This enhances a well-rounded picture of the past. These diverse viewpoints are highlighted in the two exhibit areas: Our Homes, Our Land, Our Traditions 1932-2007 and Traditional Legacy of the Barona Tribe. Each is illustrated in direct quotes, photographs, and historic objects. For the first time, all of the Tribal Councils and their administrations have been recorded to the best of our ability. I looked for the important events of each era and listened to the Barona history being told through the eyes of each Tribal member interviewed. We hope this exhibit will give rise to otherremembrances and that the body of history will be enhanced and continue to grow. The vision of a people’s history emerges in the mind’s eye of those living it — it is the historian’s task to listen and to record those memories. In this way, the Museum has been privileged to put these views, thoughts, and reminiscences together as the Barona Tribal Members tell their own stories of this living history.

“My dad said they lived in Capitan and came up here. And he traveled in a covered wagon.” Charlie Rodriguez [1930]

“At one time nobody had anything. So when they wanted to do something, everybody pitched in what they had.” Leonard Chichabahua Banegas [1940]

“The best thing I can remember is... we get to roam free all on the reservation, all over the hills. It was nice.” Caroline LaChappa Mendez [1950]

“In these days we were poor... you don’t know you’re poor. We never went hungry. We killed rabbit and deer. We had a garden all the time... our house was a shack but it was a shack.” Pat Curo [1960]

“Early memories of my childhood are filled with family and community... playing out in the field where the casino is now — riding bikes and horses.” Rhonda Lies Web-Scales [1970]

Many thanks are given to the nearly 30 Tribal members and Tribal Community members including the Tribal Council, the Museum Committee, and the elders who were interviewed in the oral histories. Appreciation to the Museum Staff, especially Alexandra Harris and Diane Tells His Name, for their work in the photos and archives. We also thank the many college interns who assisted in this project, including the transcriptionists: Paul Jeffrey, Brian Williams, Sarah Smith, Jo Hovall, and the archival assistants: Robie Edmonds, Emily Leiker, and Chief Jeff Roman and his students from the Naval School of Health Sciences.

NEW AND CONTINUING EXHIBITS

“There’s No Place Like Home…”

This new exhibition features the landscape photos of Barona Tribal member Mandy Curo. “These photographic perspectives are very special to me,” says Curo. “I consider this my way of expressing my gratitude to the Tribe for paying for my tuition to the art Institute of Colorado, and encouraging education in general.” Her exhibition will be the kickoff to an extended celebration of the 75th Anniversary of the Barona Indian Reservation. The exhibition of Ms. Curo’s photographs will continue through Fall 2007.

The Barona Cultural Center & Museum Permanent Collection: Fifth Year Retrospective

The collection that began it all! The Museum will continue celebrating our permanent collection even as we begin celebrating the 75th Anniversary of the Barona Indian Reservation. This collection was acquired for the Tribe through the generosity of Don Sper and Venture Catalyst and became the foundation for the establishment of the Museum. Please join us as we continue to celebrate our original collection.

BARONA SUPPORTS LOCAL NATIVE ART SHOW

WELCOME TO OUR NEW ASSISTANT...

Roxanne Ulyot is now filling the role of Administrative Assistant for the Barona Museum. Previously, she worked for the Ramona Unified School District for over 18 years in various capacities. She is looking forward to learning about the local Native community and traditions. Some of Roxanne’s artistic interests include beading, jewelry, and creating fiber projects using knitting, crocheting, and felting methods. We are glad to have her as the newest member of our Barona Museum team!
Our Story, Our Museum

What does a museum mean to you? When I think of a museum, I think about dinosaurs, Egyptian mummies, and old items that have no relationship to me. That was my concept before my participation in the Museum Committee. After serving as a volunteer, a committee member, and now as the Chair, that concept has changed significantly.

I am so proud of the work that our Museum has undertaken in preserving Barona's history. Each day that passes is history in the making. Maybe Barona's history will not make world news, but in the life of our people each person is a part of our story. It has been our tradition to be community oriented. I feel that we came from one source. Although each family has its own identity, we have a common thread that binds us to each other through good and bad times. The Cedar Fire in 2003 is an example of how our community came together and how the tribe helped restore us to normalcy. That history is recorded at the Museum.

In our history, we have Tribal leaders that may not be as well known as Abraham Lincoln, but leaders such as Ramon Ames and Bob Ogita are credited with urging our Capitan Grande elders to pool their allotted money and retain sovereignty by forming a new reservation at Barona. The move was triggered by House Resolution 10495, which in 1919 granted the City of San Diego part of Capitan Grande for a dam and reservoir. The Barona Museum chronicles events such as this in their archives.

The people of Barona are assured a place in posterity simply because a few forward thinking individuals decided a museum was needed. Not a museum filled with mummies or dinosaurs, but with stories of real people and events we know. It exhibits tie the present with our past.

Reflecting the investment in our own past that we have made here at Barona, the Barona Tribe has agreed to be one of the sponsors of the San Diego Natural History Museum's Dead Sea Scrolls exhibition, June 29 through December 31, 2007. The Dead Sea Scrolls — objects of great mystery, intrigue, and significance — are widely acknowledged to be among the greatest archaeological treasures ever discovered. It is advertised as a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to see the largest, most comprehensive Dead Sea Scrolls exhibition ever. So mark your calendars to attend this exhibition, and while you're hitting the Museum circuit, stop by and visit the Barona Museum!

Barona Circle of Elders

On May 2, 2007, Justine Ava Van Wanselee was born. She is my granddaughter. Justine is the child of my son Brian and his wife Lillie and the sister of Jada.

As I looked at this new member of my family, I thought about my role in this child’s life. I’ve been told that the responsibility of a Tribal Elder is to pass on learning and teaching. What do I have to give? Can it be that I am the eldest female of my family? How did that happen? Are you looking at your grandchildren, too?

So, as grandparents and holders of the past, what will we give the future? The future is Justine, and I want you to be proud of who you are. I want you to know who your father’s father’s father was. I want you to know the customs and ceremonies of your people. I want you to be honest, responsible, accountable, educated, and positive about the world around you. I want you to be Justine. My job will be to give you as much of what I learned from my father and mother, and from my own life experiences. As I grow into the evening of my life, my goal is to be a positive force in the life of my next generation. The next generation that will ultimately be responsible for passing on learning and teaching to the following generation.

Seniors: Please look for mailings as we schedule upcoming events and activities.

REMEMBER: Barona Community members, you are eligible for the senior events upon your 55th birthday. Please call to add your name to our mailing list!
Summer Classes

Ancient Spirit Speaks Summer Classes 2007

Pottery Making, July 7, and Pottery Firing class, July 21

Please join us for this two-class event with renowned artist Robert Freeman (Luiseno/Hunkpapa). Any experience level is welcome, ages 12 and up. Pottery-making will occur on July 7 from 10:00am-3:00pm. Two weeks later, class participants will return on July 21 at 8:00am for the firing. A meal and light refreshments will be provided. $20 per person, Barona Tribal Members attend free. Please R.S.V.P. by July 3.

Rabbit Stick Making Class, July 28 and 29

Learn to make one of the original hunting tools of Southern California. Stan Rodriguez (Santa Ysabel) will be teaching this ancient art over the weekend from 10:00am-3:00pm on both days. Participants should plan on attending both days due to the curing process needed to prepare the wood. Ages 16 and up only. Lunch is included. $20 per person, Barona Tribal Members attend free. We encourage you to bring safety goggles and gloves. Please R.S.V.P. by July 24.

COLLECTIONS ACTIVITY

PURCHASES

The Fiesta by Robert Freeman (Luiseno/Hunkpapa Sioux) Freeman grew up with the great moments of the seaside festival or “gathering” as the event was called before the Padres came. Festas were a very important part of Southern California Native culture, and were not to be taken lightly they were the big social event of the year for each reservation that hosted such a gathering. The excitement of the people arriving for the week (or more) long event the sights, the game, the music of people. These are the images the artist remembers most. All the reservations and Native people in the area were invited. Planning for the next year’s event started as soon as each festa was over. The gathering featured food, softball, horseshoes, dancing, jazz, and many other events. It was also an opportunity for young people to meet other young people and to further the social bonds and ties of the Southern California Native community.
